- WHICH TYPE OF TRAVEL BAG CAN I USE?

- Always opt for softshell bags. Pods of the planes are small so we need to be able to manoeuvre bags that have no ridged frames.
- There isn't much luggage space in the small charter aircrafts used on a fly-in safari. Therefore, you should pack your luggage in a softshell bag and avoid any hard-shell suitcases or trolley bags. Many charter airlines in fact, do not allow hard-shell suitcases.
- In addition to your main softshell bag, it is always handy to have a small handheld bag with you too. This you can keep with you to take with you on hikes or walks; this way you always have your most important items nearby.
- If possible, try to make sure that your bags are waterproof. This will give you greater ease of mind when you go on a mokoro excursion or any water activity in general. The waterproof cover will also help against the considerable amount of dust which your bag can get exposed to on a safari.
- The weight of your main luggage must not exceed 15 kg and your hand luggage 5 kg. Your safari packing list for Botswana shouldn't be too long: Packing light is the name of the game here – hence why we provide you with a useful Botswana safari packing list. There are always complimentary laundry services.
