TRAVEL + LEISURE HAVE INCREDIBLE ACTIVITIES FOR CHILDREN - AND PARENTS, TOO

"Many safari camps across Africa can tailor programs to younger guests — but few can rival what they've got at Cottar's 1920s Camp, in Kenya. Its Maasai Warrior School gives children a taste of wildlife tracking and traditional beading — and also teaches entomology by way of a search for the "Little Five," a group of notable insects."

TATLER

WINNER OF THE TATLER AWARD FOR THE BEST TENTED CAMP

"Cottar's Camp, on the Mara, Africa's great landscape, is quintessentially safari-romantic, with oodles of style. The twenties furniture and gramophone, the Vuitton trunks and the hotties may all sound a bit kitsch but, strangely, it's not. This is the most authentic combination of the traditional colonial safari and modern comfort. Cottar's attention to every detail – from the food to the tracking, to the hefty sundowners (there's no such thing as a 'small' drink here), to the kilims in the sitting room, to the rhythm of Africa – makes this camp so special."

'ROMANCE FULL OF PEDIGREE AND PROMISE'

"For those who find themselves hooked on Africa, there comes a time when they want something different, ...not every guide can take you there. Some do not have the taste for it and some do not have the know-how, but Calvin Cottar and his 1920s safaris come with the kind of pedigree and promise that is hard to resist."
