Lion House Sleep Out

US$ 800 per night
Max 2 guests

A night on the roof of Gorongosa's history

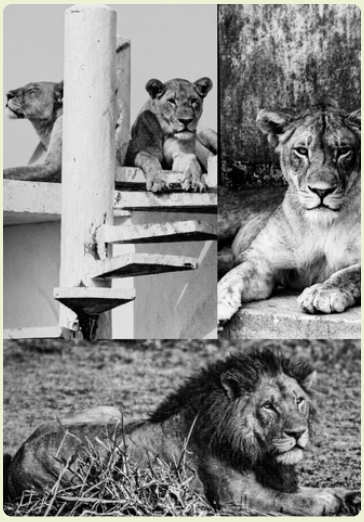

Built in 1940 as Gorongosa's first tourist camp, the Lion House was soon abandoned to the seasonal floods and claimed by the park's lions, who climbed its spiral staircase and kept watch over the Urema Plain from its roof. Today it is one of the most famous buildings in African safari history.

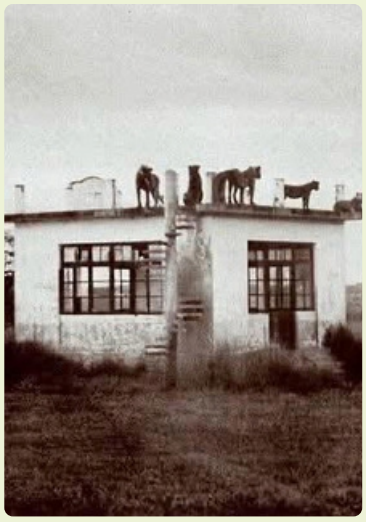

Newly refurbished, it now offers a private rooftop sleepout for up to two guests. After dinner at camp, your guide drives you out to the Lion House and stays close by through the night. Downstairs, a small museum tells the story of the building and the park, from its golden years through the Civil War to the restoration that has brought the wildlife back.

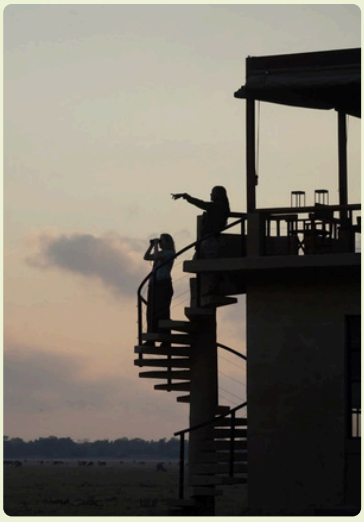

Fall asleep to lions calling across the plain, then wake to coffee as the sun rises and herds of waterbuck graze below. For more than eighty years, lions and people have written the Lion House story. Now it's your turn to add a chapter.
