LOWER ZAMBEZI NATIONAL PARK - ZAMBIA

POTATO BUSH CAMP

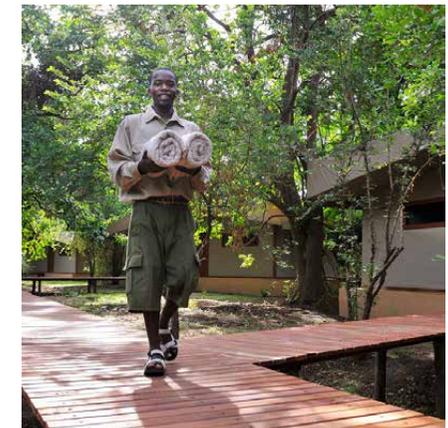

Potato Bush sets high standards in the new era for small exclusive luxury tented safari camps! This African contemporary architectural design perfectly balances the raw structural integrity and natural beauty of solid Zambian Rosewood and dramatically compliments the use of traditional canvas.

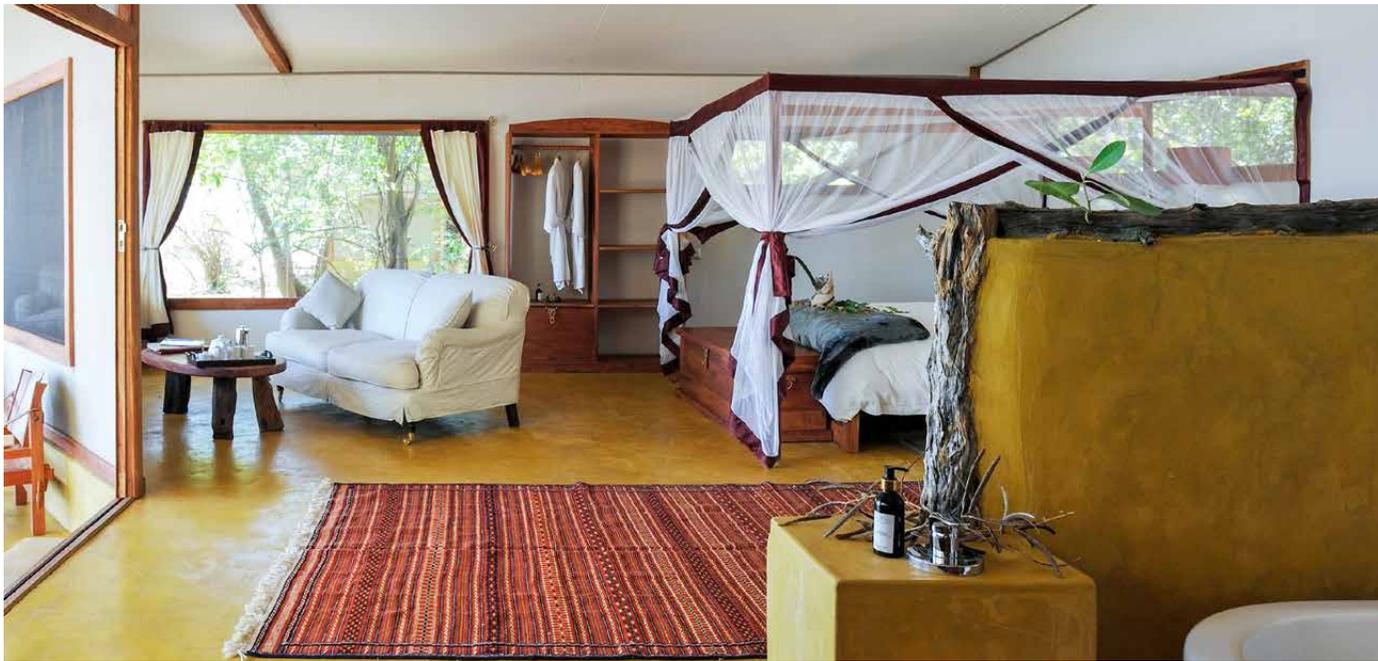

The Camp consists of 3 Luxury Safari Tents and 1 Two-bedroom Family House. The 3 Luxury Tents are extremely spacious and have en-suite bathrooms with twin showers, twin basins and a full size four-claw bath tub. Large Rosewood folding doors lead onto the balcony which hosts a 2-person hammock and a private plunge pool, with well appointed furniture to compliment the ambience and architecture of the tents.

Each Safari Tent is perfectly positioned along the river with sweeping panoramic views, right in the very heart and most game rich location inside the Lower Zambezi National Park.

The Two-bedroom Family House is a massive 21m wide perfectly designed safari tent. This offers a huge central living, dining and balcony area which divides the two- bedrooms, both with en-suite bathrooms, twin showers, twin basins and bath tubs with views. To accompany the architectural grandeur of this luxury house, it also offers a large plunge pool, fully stocked bar and fridge, private dining table and furniture that compliments both the style of the house and the surrounding environment. Perfect for families, or any party of 4 adults.

Each Tent is shaded by huge Acacia Tortilis and Mahogany Trees. The entire camp is linked by raised timber board walks.

Today the Mott family own and run Sausage Tree Camp and her Sister Camp Potato Bush Camp. Having fallen in love with the beauty and game of the Lower Zambezi area in 1996 while helping to build Sausage Tree Camp, Jason decided to stay becoming a qualified guide, then manager and finally achieving his dream of making it his own in 2000. He now enjoys sharing his love and passion with his wife and two children.
