The river also offers possibilities for leisurely sun rise and sun set cruising which brings a different perspectives for game viewing and spectacular birdwatching along its banks.

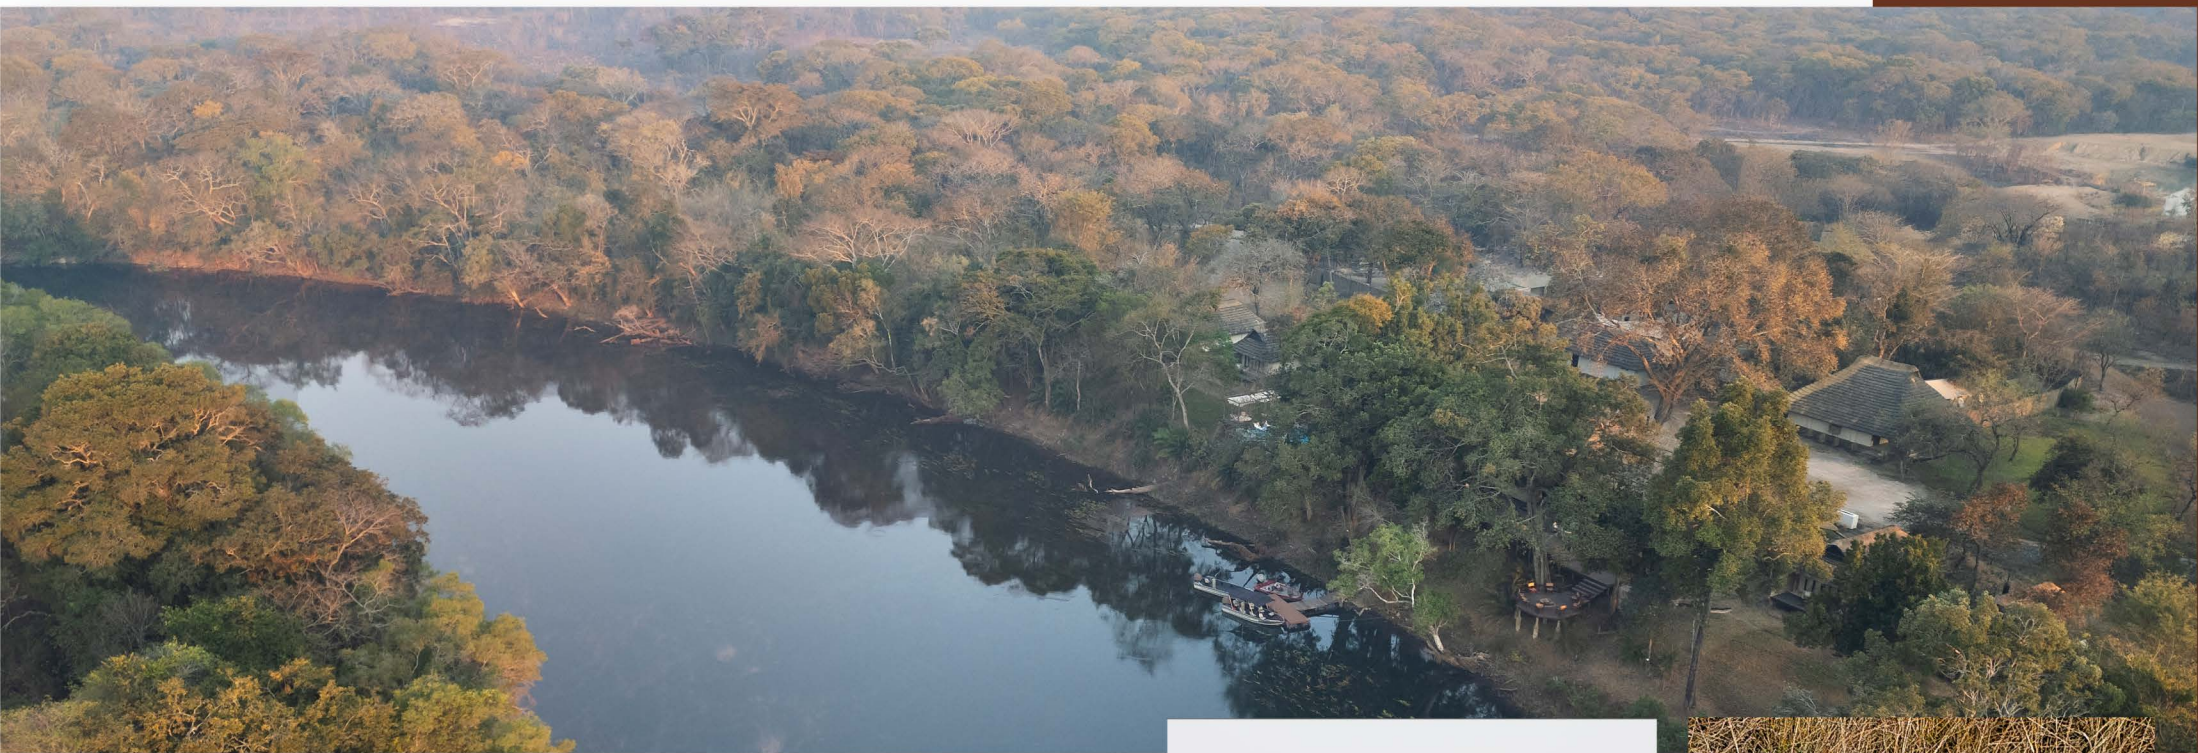

ACTIVITIES

The Lunga River, which forms the northern boundary of Lolelunga Private Reserve in Zambia, is a truly pristine waterway.

Famed for its crystal-clear waters, it flows at a tranquil, slow pace, making it an idyllic setting for serene water activities, like early morning breakfast.

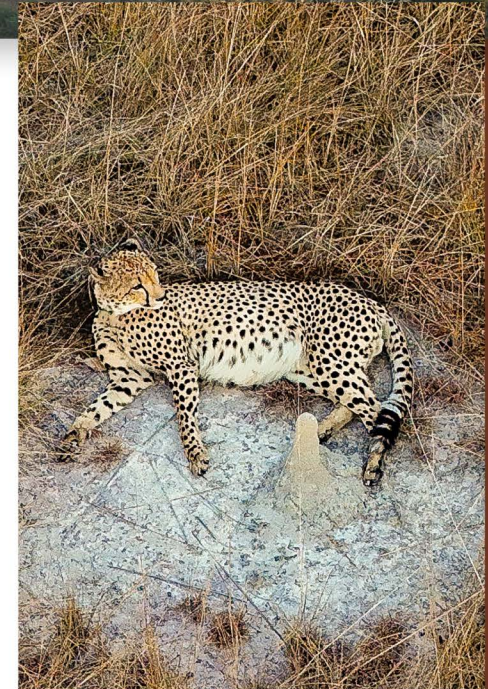

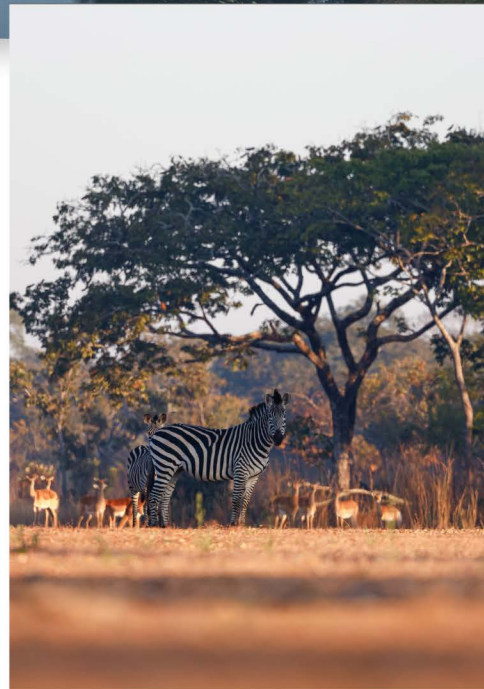

RE-WILDING & CONSERVATION

The Lolelunga Private Reserve stands as a powerful testament to the success of ambitious re-wilding efforts in northern Zambia.

Through intensive conservation and rehabilitation, this 30 000 hectare sanctuary has been transformed from an area decimated by poaching into a thriving ecosystem supporting over 4,000 animals.

At the heart of this success is the pioneering cheetah reintroduction project, a landmark conservation achievement that saw cheetahs return to this part of Zambia for the first time in decades.

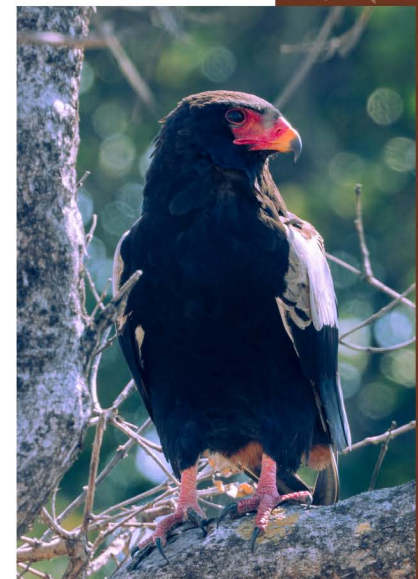

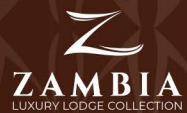

RE-WILDING & CONSERVATION

The reserve's rich biodiversity now supports a remarkable variety of plains game, including rare and beautiful antelope species such as the majestic sable, the striking roan, the semi-aquatic red lechwe and puku, and the elusive swamp-dwelling sitatunga. This flourishing population of both predator and prey highlights Lolelunga's critical role in restoring Zambia's natural heritage.

We've transformed a remote area - decimated by poaching, deforestation, over fishing and indiscriminate logging- into an extraordinarily fully fenced private reserve, the largest in Zambia. Our efforts have not only restored the ecosystem but have also led to the successful reintroduction of indigenous wildlife.
