Here, the bush feels quieter, more intimate, framed by riverine forest and the gentle rhythm of the Marico. At Last Word Makanyane, spacious suites face the ever flowing river, where birds call from the canopy and wildlife moves through the reeds below.

Last Word Makanyane is a luxurious lodge set in a peaceful bush-forest area in the north-eastern part of the Madikwe region, with all suites facing the Marico River. Makanyane is situated on 1,800 hectares of private land, offering a rarer kind of safari freedom, one-of-a-kind experiences and special stops can be arranged, without being bound by the same operating rules as lodges situated on Madikwe Reserve land. Between game drives, unwind by the pool or retreat to the privacy of your spacious suite, river views, birdsong, and the quiet pulse of the bush included.

A LITTLE MADIKWE HISTORY

Established in 1991, the Madikwe Game Reserve was developed as a three-way partnership between the South African Government, local communities and the private sector. Operation Phoenix was initiated and thousands of animals were relocated into the reserve over a period of years, one of the largest game translocation and re-introduction programmes to have taken place in the world to date.
