Meet Your Trip Leader: Scilla Delmastro

Born and raised in Italy's beautiful Piedmont region, Scilla Delmastro brings a genuine love of her country, a wealth of international travel experience, and a warm, engaging personality to her role as Trip Leader.

A graduate in English, French, and German languages, Scilla began her career working for an Italian tour operator in Spain's Canary and Balearic Islands, where she also learned Spanish. Her career has taken her around the world, accompanying Italian groups to international meetings and conferences, particularly in the United States. Today, she specializes in welcoming international travelers to Italy, sharing its remarkable history, art, culture, traditions, and culinary delights.

For Scilla, travel is as much about the people and experiences as it is about the places. She especially enjoys introducing guests to regional foods, excellent wines, and the everyday pleasures of Italian life. Her appreciation for authentic Italian hospitality extends to her own home in the Piedmont countryside, where she operates a charming bed-and-breakfast in a historic farmhouse.

When she isn't traveling, Scilla enjoys music, singing, exploring the countryside with her beloved Labrador, Achille, and spending time with her daughter, with whom she shares a passion for travel.

Scilla looks forward to sharing the festive traditions, seasonal flavors, and enchanting Christmas markets of northern Italy with our Conservancy Travel guests, bringing her personal warmth, local perspective, and professional expertise to every day of the trip.
