

PROUDLY INTRODUCING

SIMON BAKARI MANYOTTO

Wildlife documentaries captured Simon's imagination from childhood, immediately setting his professional goal as a safari guide. This accomplished Mbondei tribesman completed Form Four and Guiding College before joining Maasai Wanderings in 2010 as Head Safari Guide, speaking Swahili and English while leading with expertise and genuine passion for Tanzania's wilderness.

The magnificent Serengeti holds Simon's heart as the preferred habitat for most northern Tanzanian species, guaranteeing amazing safari experiences every time. His deep fascination with lions reflects his appreciation for their incredible hunting strategies—stalking, patience, speed, and power create nature's most thrilling performances. The remarkable Ruppell's Griffon Vulture amazes him as the world's highest-flying bird at over 33,000 feet, demonstrating outstanding binocular vision.

Simon's most unforgettable safari moment showcases nature's ultimate drama: hungry crocodiles attacking lions who were feasting on their kill near the water's edge. These authentic experiences fuel his conservation leadership. He encourages guests to bring 40-50x binoculars, dress in khaki colors, and pack telephoto lenses while embracing his vital message: preserve ecosystems at all costs to protect flora and fauna species for future generations.
